

New Documentation Search Functionality

Customers can enter two ways to the new search functionality. The first way is by using the left hand navigation within Mylincoln as normal.

Or by going through our public facing page shown below. NOTE: If you start from the public facing page the customer will be redirected to the salesforce login page before they can proceed.

Once the customer has logged in they will now see the enhanced search feature that looks similar to the operator manual search function available to the general public but with additional documents such as wiring diagrams and schematics.

Below is a search that you can use to locate a products documentation. You can use any of the following product number, code number, manual number or product description to locate and download the products manual. Use the filter options to limit the search results to just the documents you are looking to retrieve.

For replacement part information click HERE.

If you cannot locate the specific documentation please email us at Service_Navigator@lincolnelectric.com with the code number or product number of the material and we can assist further.

Just like using the Operator Manual search function you will now be able to search documents based on code number, product number, or document description. Simply add to the search box any of the previous mentioned search criteria and select the find button to begin the search. NOTE: For best results you will still want to use the code number as many of our documents are cross platform which will make description searching by description less desired for older equipment.
