Welding Certification Program

LEEPS™

The Lincoln Electric Education Partner Schools (LEEPS™) program, in partnership with the National Coalition of Certification Centers (NC3), is designed for institutions looking to offer a full suite of portable, stackable welding certifications. LEEPS programs support welding schools and training programs throughout the nation with the most comprehensive and relevant welding education tools and resources available for advancing skill levels and the preparation needed to succeed in specific fields.

Instructors learn effective teaching strategies and have access to an integral support system with comprehensive instructional tools and learning management resources. Students receive training in problem solving and navigating through the steps required to become a successful, highly skilled welder in their industry of choice.

Certifications

NC3 certifications can be applied across several different industries creating flexible, stackable, and relevant credentials in industries such as welding, transportation, manufacturing, energy, building trades, aviation, digital literacy and agriculture.
